

A black and white sketch of a street scene in a city. The drawing is done in a loose, expressive style with visible pencil or charcoal lines. It shows a street curving to the right, lined with multi-story buildings. On the left, there's a building with a series of arches. On the right, a more prominent building with a flat roof and several windows is visible. A person is walking on the sidewalk on the right side of the street. The overall atmosphere is that of a quick, gestural study of an urban environment.
